Care for your pipe

To get fullest enjoyment from your Barling Pipe, observe these simple rules:

1. Although your first two pipes may not be entirely satisfactory, your pipe by Barling requires no special break-in procedure. For, after smoking your first two pipes, you can look forward to sweet-smoking pleasure thereafter.
2. Keep the carbon lining to a minimum, or the bowl may split. Use a pipe reamer, applied carefully. Never use a knife or sharply pointed instrument in the bowl, as such repeated action will inevitably gouge a hole in the bottom of the tobacco chamber.
3. Tap out the dottle in the palm of your hand; never on a hard surface, as this might chip the rim of the bowl. If you must clear out the dottle with a tool, use one that is wide and well rounded. Hold the pipe by the bowl, not the mouthpiece when tapping out, to avoid excessive pressure on the shank.
4. Never refill a hot pipe. Alternate at least two pipes daily or weekly as you choose. Use pipe cleaners frequently to keep your pipe clean.
5. Do not light your pipe using a cigarette lighter with an excessively high flame. This will char and burn the top of the bowl.
6. Do not drop the pipe. Avoid rough usage.

Barling A tradition in pipemaking since 1812

The Barling family were English silversmiths and many of the fine silver mountings on pipes favoured by smokers at the end of the 18th Century bore the mark of Barling.

In 1812 Benjamin Barling achieved his greatest ambition – to carve, then complement with his unique silver mountings, Meerschaum pipes which later received award at the Great Exhibition of 1851.

Today, the Barling tradition captures the finest elegance of both Bruyère and Meerschaum pipes – pipes known and treasured by connoisseurs and dedicated pipe smokers throughout the world.

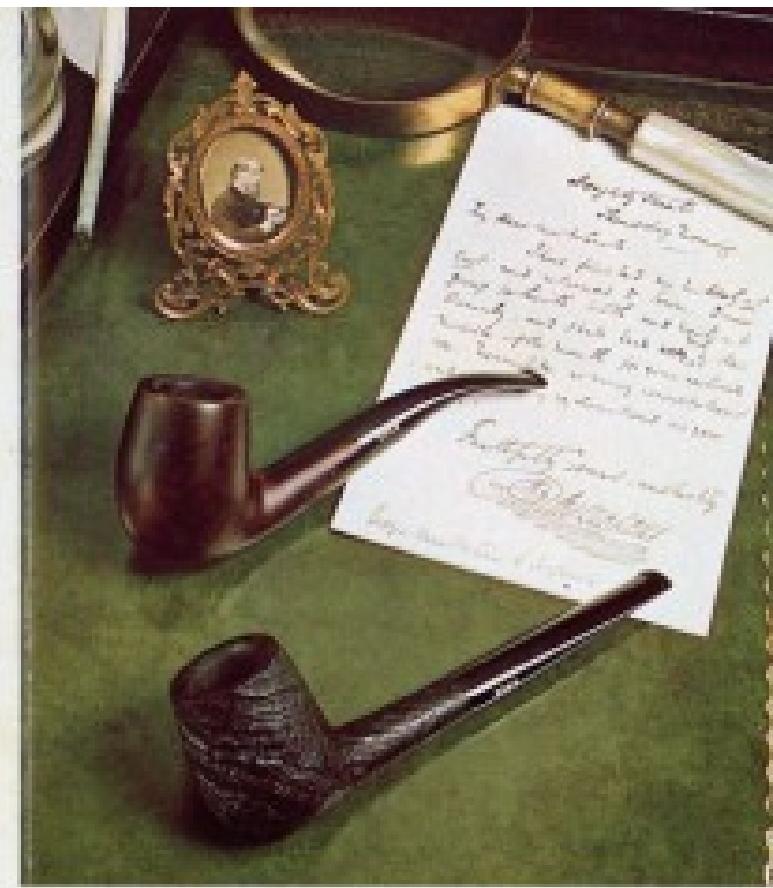

The Barling Londoner Pipe Range is illustrated on this leaflet. The other Barling ranges include Barling Meerschaum: Cool, dry and sweet tasting; a lightweight, porous pipe with an intellectual pedigree. Barling Original Pipe Range: A most elegant, distinctive range of pipes for the dedicated smoker.

Barling Presentation: The King of pipes. Each superb and unique as these pipes are individually carved for the pipe smoking connoisseur.

Barling Londoner Pipe Range

The pipes in this range, excellent in shape and finish yet considerably moderate in price, rightly enjoy their international reputation for quality and value. TAPER or FLAT SADDLE tailormade mouthpieces complement each of the Londoner shapes.

The shapes come in the following two finishes:

LONDONER STANDARD:

A warm walnut finish which is produced by expert hand-polishing. This finish, with the warmth and friendliness of its tone, is a particular favourite of pipe smokers.

LONDONER SANDBLAST:

A fine finish achieved only by carefully selecting the bowl to be sandblasted. Then the deep graining, which gives this finish its personality, can be distinctively etched onto the bowl.
